Stores Plan to Remain Open on Armistice Day

Ocean Beach stores generally will remain open the coming Saturday, Armistice day, a survey by The News revealed Wednesday. Account of the event falling on Saturday this year and the general disposition to see no particular reason why war work and business as usual should not prevail, the merchants here evidently lean to the opinion that there is no particular call for the closing this year.

The Ocean Beach postoffice also is varying from the usual closing on Armistice day and this time will remain open and the mail carriers will make their routes. Harold K. Rankin of the local station has received orders from Washington to that effect. Though an unusual order, he says, the order does not explain why the postoffice will remain open. Armistice day is both a federal and a legal holiday.

Dance at USO

Clyde A. Wright post of the American Legion is arranging a dance for the service-men and women to be held at the Ocean Beach USO, starting at 8 p.m. An orchestra has been obtained to provide the music. The Legion post also will provide the refreshments to be served during the evening.

The Ocean Beach Masonic club also has arranged a dance for Saturday night, to be given in lodge hall, starting at 9 o'clock. This will be for the Masons and the Eastern Stars and their friends.

Point Loma High School News

Red Cross Activities

Junior Red Cross activities are in full swing with the emphasis of activities placed on filling boxes to be issued to service-men. A total of 25,000 boxes will be needed for service-men in the Naval hospital and other hospitals in San Diego county. The Red Cross is counting on San Diego school students to provide 5,000. Point Loma will meet its quota and more we are sure. Each home room is asked to be generous and fill a number of boxes according to Miss Barbara Byrne, faculty sponsor.

"Moonlight Mood" Dance

"Moonlight Mood" semi-formal dance, to be held tonight. (Nov. 10), from 8:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. in the girls' gymnasium at Point Loma high, is creating much interest and excited anticipation these days. Kosta Sacrenty, chairman of the dance committee, announces Mel Broiles' and his band will furnish the swing. Mel's band is made up of students from several San Diego schools but Lomans think primarily of Mel's trumpet. Edna Marie Parks will be songstress, George Larrabee will entertain with his cowboy songs and his guitar and a comedy skit, with Dick Entringer and Buddy Russell, will be floor-show features of the evening.

Seniors Identified

Seniors of Point Loma are now more easiy identified since the rings and pins now adorn those stately, dignified classmen. Before so very long senior sweaters also will be modeled through the corridors. These will be maroon with "V" neck, slip-over style.

Moral-Spiritual Weapons Needed To Win Peace

Thus Declares Rabbi E. Siegel in Talk to Kiwanis Club

"For the Allies to win this war physical weapons are needed, of course, but to win the peace the need is for moral and spiritual weapons," Rabbi E. Siegel of San Diego declared before the Kiwanis club at this week's meeting, held Tuesday evening. He was introduced by Principal Clarence Swenson of Dana junior high school.

The speaker announced his subject to be "Winning the Peace," and he said in part:

"This war is a conflict of ideas and principles as well as of material things. If we are to have a true victory we must not only destroy the enemy but the barbarism for which he stands.

"Unless we succeed in establishing a just social order we shall have won the war but lost the peace. Two things are needed: 1. To win the war we must have physical weapons. 2. To win the peace we must have moral and spiritual weapons.

"For 200 years our thoughts have been devoted to man's physical needs, and we have almost completely neglected the spiritual needs. We have forgotten that it is the soul that makes the man. We have followed a man-made code of expediency. What is needed to save the world is a spiritual remedy. It is high time that we learned that scientific achievement without spiritual values is a curse.

"As long as one nation is persecuted and treated unfairly we cannot have a just and lasting peace. Ten years ago the Jewish population totaled 17,000,000. Since then, however, around 4,000,000 Jewish civilians have been wiped out by Hitler and his satellites. Palestine has now only 600,000 Jews and these would gladly welcome the 2,000,000 Jews left in Europe. England needs to be persuaded to allow this to be done. I plead with you to do your utmost to help us. I ask you Protestant ministers to devote one sermon a year to this cause."

Lt. James Thompson of Charleston, Ill. was a visiting Kiwanian. He is now stationed with the Navy in San Diego. Carleton Bingham was introduced by Mr. Swenson as the new junior member of the club from the Point Loma high school student body. Other visitors were the following:

Morgan Eastman and Ray Patrick, both of San Diego, guests of Milton Lancaster; Dr. J. L. McSparran, Pasadena, guest of Forest Whedon; and Homer Gravelle of Ocean Beach, guest of J. R. Lownes.

"At next week's meeting, Program Chairman I. J. Claspill, announces that Fred A. Amick of Ocean Beach will present an illustrated lecture on "How the Navy has Devised New Ways of Saving Lives of Sailors."

ROOSEVELT WINS AT DANA

The students of Dana Junior high school held an election on the same day as their elders, under the supervision of the Social Studies department. The Prohibitionist candidate for president received five votes, Dewey received 204 votes and Roosevelt 504.

USO PLANS TO HOLD OLD FASHIONED DANCE SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 25

At the Junior Hostess monthly meeting held Tuesday evening it was planned to give an old fashioned dance Saturday evening, Nov. 25.

The buffet supper given by the Ocean Beach Woman's club last Sunday evening was thoroughly enjoyed by a large crowd. The committee in charge of contributions and food included Mrs. C. H. Wocley, Mrs. Paul W. Farrar and Mrs. Glen Jones. Hostesses for the supper were Mrs. Robt. Long, Mrs. Paul W. Farrar and Mrs. Lloyd Davis. Other club members also dropped in and this helped to create a home atmosphere.

An Armistice dance will be on the program Saturday night, beginning at 8 p.m. sponsored by the Ocean Beach American Legion post.

Church of Christ Dedicates Large Auditorium Here

A new Church of Christ auditorium in the Morrissey building at 1957 Abbott st. was dedicated Sunday afternoon, with about 130 present. Five ministers from neighboring Churches of Christ presented from different aspects the theme, "Righteousness, An Attitude of Mind," and five visiting song directors assisted the local director, Wayne Hill, in the song service.

The event climaxed several months of effort to secure a suitable place for worship. Two adjacent rooms in the Morrissey bldg. were leased, the partition was removed, and the enlarged auditorium completely renovated, providing a place for study and worship that will seat 130 or more.

Nearly two years ago this group began meeting in a small room. Attendance has grown until a full scale program is now under way. With the help of the El Cajon blvd. congregation in San Diego, the services of Rev. Fred A. Amick, a full time minister, have been secured.

A cordial welcome is extended Ocean Beach folks to attend. The schedule of services follows:

Bible class Sunday, 10 a.m. and 6:30 p.m., preaching service 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., communion service 11:50 a.m. and "Training for Service" Wednesday, 7:30 p.m.

Rev. Amick preached in Salt Lake City, Utah and Fruitland, Idaho and on El Cajon blvd. San Diego, before coming to Ocean Beach. He has been director of Safety Services department of the San Diego Red Cross chapter for a year and a half, a position which he has now resigned to accept the pastorate of the local church.

OCEAN BEACH SCHOOL NEWS

Buying of stamps and bonds was accelerated at the elementary school this week. The total amount from sales was $525.45. Grade four, room 9, was high, with a total of $234.35

At present, the major topic of the sixth grade social studies is "Textiles." The various committees and their chairmen are as follows: "Customs and styles." Naomi Staggs; "The Origin and Source of the Different Textiles into Materials,"Barbara Putney: "Experimenting with Materials." Marcia Cunningham"; "Materials of the Future," Raymond Schroeder.

As part of our physical education program, we are learning folk dances from the Scandinavian countries.

The first grade room, taught by Mrs. Krause, has "The Home" as the study unit. In their room they have a playhouse, a speckled dove, and an aquarium of fish. The children have fun taking care of these things. They have a science table where they have had spiders, caterpillars, grasshoppers and many other insects. The children are anxiously waiting for the butterflies to emerge from their cocoons. One spider, that is named "Spinny," built a nest and some baby spiders hatched from the eggs. The children have written many stories about these things and have made a book of the stories. The books will be illustrated before they are taken home. Each child has a definite duty towards the maintenance of a neat, orderly room. They enjoy these responsibilities and take pride in the proper performance of them.

Mr. Hovde's sixth grade room was in charge of the student assembly program on Thursday, Nov. 9. They dramatized "The Return of the Princess." The announcer was Jo Ann Barnes, the curtain attendant was Perry Wyman, and members of the cast were: Diana Zolezzi, Leslie Steffel, Shirley Saville, Pat Hudson, Nancy Rice, Claudia Feener, Ann Hammond, Jimmy Bass, Johnny Isbell, and Jimmy White.

A report on the Marine corps was given by Ardith Cowan.

KIWANIS CLUB HELPS GET OUT THE VOTE IN OCEAN BEACH

The Kiwanis club of Ocean Beach, as a public service in the election, held Tuesday, bought and distributed to the local stores 5,000 stickers which were placed on the packages going out of the stores Monday and Tuesday. On the stickers were the words, "Vote for whoever you please, but vote."

Another public service rendered was providing 5,000 small, circular buttonhole posters on which was printed, "I Voted Today, Did You?" These were distributed to the Ocean Beach polling places and were generally worn by the voters, especialy early in the day Tuesday. They attracted much favorable comment, according to reports received by The News.

These club efforts were handled under the direction of Dr. W. B. Oster, chairman of the club's committee on public affairs.

The work here was but a part of the Kiwanis International public service program helping to get out the vote all over the United tates, reports Secretary Burritt S. Mills of the local club.

Donations Still Coming for Fund For Recreation

The Civic Recreation committee held a meeting Nov. 1 to wind up business details of the community campaign to raise funds for a recreation center. Members present were Clarence Swenson, Rollin E. Reed, Dr. W. B. Oster, Martin Murphy, Mrs. W. L. Meade, Mrs. D. C. Muchmore, and Mrs. Martha McIntosh. In the absence of Rev. J. F. Roberts, Mrs. Muchmore served as chairman. Mrs. Meade made a financial statement of the amount collected from each section of the community. A few contributions are still coming in and will be added to the sum previously reported.

A sub-committee, consisting of Mr. Swenson, L. L. Bloomenshine, Mrs. Muchmore, Rev. Roberts and Mrs. McIntosh, reported a recent conference held with the San Diego Recreation commission. The commission expressed great interest in the project and a sincere desire to provide a fully adequate building and recreation facilities. Members of the commission indicated that they would give active support to the type of program envisioned by the people of Ocean Beach.

Several new committee appointments were made. Mrs. Meade and Mr. Bloomenshine were added to the Post-War Recreation Planning committee. Rollin Reed, who has served as financial advisor during the campaign, was appointed to membership on the Civic Recreation committee.

The committee went on record as endorsing the "Get-Out-the-Vote" campaign which was sponsored by the Kiwanis club.

OCEAN BEACH OFFICER WAS WOUNDED THRICE IN NORMANDY INVASION

Lt. Les Tucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Tucker, 5031 Santa Monica ave., had the tough luck to be wounded three times in the Normandy invasion, according to news received here by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Tucker. Lt. Tucker, who is in the Army, writes of his experience: "It was in the third day of the invasion in the swing toward Cherbourg that the Jerries really gave us the works from their hidden gun positions. Ours, a heavy weapon company, was sent ahead to get the range of the mortars and artillery that were making it hot for us in that hedgerow fighting."

The lieutenant was knocked out of the fighting by wounds. The first two he weathered by use of a first aid kit and blood transfusions on the field. The third set of wounds he suffered while he was being removed to a field hospital in the rear, and was finally obliged to go to England and finally home to the States for further hospital treatment.

He is visiting his wife, Mrs. Blanche Tucker, and their little daughter, Frances, at El Centro, Calif. and expects to report soon to Fort Lewis, Wash. for modified service.

Pt. Loma Takes On St. Augustine Eleven Today

Point Loma high takes on the St. Augustine eleven on Ross field here this (Friday) afternoon, the game to start at 2:30 p.m. Coach Bill Maxwell's lads aim to boost their standing in the Victory league race today at the expense of the "Saints."

Today's game will be the next to the last for the "Pointers," the final of the season to be with Sweetwater, Friday, Nov. 17, also on the local field.

The "Pointers" ran into too much football in Balboa stadium last Friday, and were mowed down by the San Diego high "Hillers" to the tune of 45 to 0, one of the worst defeats in years for the Pt. Loma team. The "Hillers" evidently are in a class by themselves this season and are firmly entrenched at top of the league race.

Pt. Loma held San Diego scoreless in the first period, but were unable to cope with the opponents trigger-passing and powerful running attack in the other three quarters. The "Hillers" scored 19 each in the second and third periods and 7 points in the final stanza.

In other league games played Friday, Coronado downed Hoover 20 to 14 and La Jolla out-scored Grossmont, 31 to 20.

Civilian Defense - -

DISTRICT No. 7
Bayview 6101

Time is passing and we must keep ourselves busy getting those little Christmas boxes filled and wrapped for the men in the military hospitals here in our San Diego area. These boxes must be in on or before Dec. 10 in order that they may be gotten to the hospitals by Dec. 15. So please get those boxes completed and wrapped and take them to the Ocean Beach school during school hours, Monday through Friday. Kindly call Bayview 6101 and advise us the number of boxes taken to the school from your sector.

Also, another reminder, when buying your own Christmas cards, get a few extra ones for the men at the hospitals to send to their relatives and friends and take them to your sector leader.

Having personally visited the Blood Donor center, at Columbia and Beech st. this week, I regret to say that I was informed that San Diego is falling behind in its quota for blood plasma. If you are able to give your blood for the much needed plasma, make an appointment at the center or at the Plaza and keep that appointment. This is one way you can do your own part in this World war.

The following articles were turned into the office this week from Sector H: 7 gift-wrapped jig-saw puzzles and one hospital lap-robe.

Although Civilian Defense is not as active as heretofore, there still is need for the hospital lap-robes and slippers and our women are asked to continue making them.

ARMISTICE DAY

Armistice Day of 1944, marking the 26th anniversary of Germany's capitulation in World War I, will hardly be celebrated with enthusiasm. The reason, of course, is that we are too intent on achieving the day of victory in the present world struggle.

Then, too, there really isn't much—if anything—to celebrate about Armistice Day. For years we looked upon it as the time when the world realized its dream of lasting peace. We have long since lost that view.

But Nov. 11, 1918, does hold a valuable lesson for mankind—if mankind is wise enough now to learn it. The lesson is that peace does not automatically follow the cessation of war. Peace must be fought for with even greater vigor and determination than we use in waging war. We must employ to the full our spiritual and moral forces toward this goal and back them up, if necessary, with the nation's armed might.

In the final analysis, we must not have another armistice day in this war. It must be a day of victory—not just victory of one group of nations over another group, but victory for all nations over the scourge of war.

CONFUSION ON GI BILL

Recent reports from Washington tell of inquiries coming in about the "GI Bill of Rights," which indicate that some veterans believe they are to receive a $2,000 "gift" from the government.

This is but one of the many misunderstandings about the GI Bill which have arisen. With 1¼ million men already discharged from the armed forces, and with thousands more coming out each week, it is important that these misunderstandings be cleared up.

Here are some facts on the GI law: There will be no $2,000 gifts. Nor is the government lending any money to ex-servicemen. It will simply guarantee 50 percent of certain loans made to veterans by banks and other lenders for the following purposes: To buy or build a home, to start or buy a business, to buy a farm or farm equipment, to make improvements or repairs, to take care of back property taxes or other old debts. But no guarantee may exceed $2,000 for any one person.

Being an ex-serviceman does not automatically entitle one to a loan. The law requires that the veteran be of good character and have enough income to meet loan installments as they fall due. If borrowing to buy a farm or business, he must have sufficient knowledge and ability in that line to give him a reasonable chance for success.

At this writing, detailed regulations governing loans have not been distributed by Washington, and until this is done, loans under the GI law cannot be made. Many banks, such as California's statewide branch banking institution, are ready to act as soon as these regulations appear.

It should be remembered, however, that even after a loan is approved by the lender, it must be referred to the Veterans' Administration for a final "o.k." This agency hopes to render a decision within two weeks after the application is filed.

Just say that I'm well
And sign my name

Can't tell where we sail from
Can't mention the date
Can't even number
The meals that I ate.

Can't say where we're going
Don't know where we'll land
Couldn't inform you

All military secrets

Ryan Firm Gets $40 Million Order For New Planes

An additional order for over $40,000,000 calling for hundreds of warplanes has just been placed with the Ryan Aeronautical Company by the United States Navy, announces T. Claude Ryan, president, and the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics. It can be stated that the Ryan plane is already in production and is expected to play an important part in the months ahead in the Navy's stepped up air war against Japan.

In a message to Ryan workers, the Navy's chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, Rear Admiral DeWitt C. Ramsay said, "The Navy has just placed with your company an additional contract for warplanes. With the acceleration of the Navy's offensive in the Pacific the need for faster and improved fighter planes increases. The fleet must have enough planes of your manufacture to help fulfill that need and maintain superior fighter strength. The Navy calls upon each of you men and women of the Ryan Aeronautical Company to spare no effort in carrying out this important new assignment."

In adidtion to this latest order, Ryan is already at work on $18,000,000 of Navy contracts previously received for these same planes, and $15,000,000 of orders for exhaust manifold systems and aircraft assemblies for other companies. This now gives Ryan a total backlog in excess of $70,000,000.

"Aircraft workers in San Diego who might otherwise have been concerned about possible cut-backs in production after X-Day in Europe now have the assurance of the continuing jobs which will be provided by this contract for equipment needed for the war against Japan," said Mr. Ryan.

"To get these planes out and into action with Navy pilots in the Pacific, and to complete other contracts already held, Ryan employees will have to produce more war equipment than has been manufactured in our plant in the entire three years since Pearl Harbor. That should give San Diego some conception of the magnitude of the war job which must still be done at Ryan.

"Ryan contracts for war equipment are at an all-time high and represent heavy manufacturing operations well into 1946. In the months ahead, employment must be increased 35 percent over the present payroll, which is the greatest in the company's history."

We wish we could tell you but the fact is that it depends on these two things:

1 The extent to which present subscribers may decide to give up service, thus releasing central office equipment, instruments, outside wires, etc.

2 The extent to which manufacturing facilities and manpower, new and released equipment, are available after the needs of war are met.

Meantime, we promise you this: Your application will not be forgotten and it will be filled in the proper turn.

Ocean Beach Camp and Hospital

By ONA E. PITCOCK

Phone B-5639

We had 48½ dozen cookies this week and two birthday boxes, one donated by Mrs. Willard Tripp and one by Mrs. Hansen. Both went to the main hospital.

Miss Nye of Camp and Hospital wants Christmas tree decorations and the 25 cent detective story books and any other books that can be put in Christmas boxes or as gifts to the boys in the hospitals. These are needed badly.

You can get your empty Christmas boxes here at the Center and fill them yourselves or you can buy the articles allowed to be put in them and we will pack and wrap them. We need wash rags, handkerchiefs, army and navy buttons, games, puzzles, shoe polish, cloth shoe strings, writing folders, shaving cream, tooth brushes, tooth paste nail brushes, emery boards, memo books, etc.

Please bring in these articles as soon as possible. Many more wounded have arrived and we will need many more boxes this year.

Evervone will do their part I know as Ocean Beach women have been wonderful.

Don't forget cookie day is Wednesday.

Memorial Rites Held by W.C.T.U. For Mrs. M. Lynas

Memorial service honoring Mrs. Mary B. Lynas, who passed away October 5, was held at the October meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, at the Assembly of God church, corner of Cape May ave. and Ebers st. on October 26.

Speaking of Mrs. Lynas, the officers of the local group, stated this week that "she was a tireless worker for the cause and many members give her credit for their memberships." She had been a member of the Ocean Beach union since 1929. Mrs. Minnie Clark read a poem in tribute to Mrs. Lynas.

At the October meeting, reports were given of the recent W.C.T.U. convention at Redlands, Calif. The reports showed that there are now 12,000 members in the Southern California district.

The officers report that the local unit now has 60 members, and urge that "mothers and other local women make more earnest efforts to put this worth while cause over the top for the youth of tomorrow. We urge folks to join us in making Ocean Beach a better place to live."

Next meeting of the unit will be held at the Assembly of God church on Thursday, November 30, at 2 p. m.

Arrange Earlier Mail for Yankee War Prisoners

Maj. Gen. Charles H. Lyman, U.S.M.C., (retd.), chairman of the San Diego Chapter of Red Cross, announces that newly captured prisoners of war in Germany will receive their mail from home two or three months earlier than has previously been possible because of new plans for forwarding arranged by the Provost Marshall General's Office.

Under the new plan, the post office will accept mail for a prisoner of war immediately after official information is received that he has been captured by Germany. Previously, relatives in this country were compelled to wait until they received his permanent camp address—often two or three months after a man was first reported prisoner -- before they could start the first letter on its long trip to the prison camp.

The International Red Cross committee has agreed to handle mail for newly captured men and forward it as soon as they are informed of each man's camp address. It must be addressed as follows:—

The judge was more hard of hearing than he admitted. So confusion reigned when two other deaf men appeared before him at a trial.

The first one spoke: "Your honor, I am suing for $11 due me for repair work done in my garage."

The second said: "It's a lie, Your Honor, my dog never bit him."

The judge scanned through the list of cases before him. Then he said: "It seems to me you're both too hot-headed; I see no reason why you should not combine to support your grandfather."

"She has a very magnetic personality."

"She ought to. Every stitch she has on is charged."

You are the shipper of this freight

Next time you see a trainload of tanks, or guns or jeeps, remember that this war material belongs to you. Your taxes and War Bonds paid for it. You are the shipper. Japan is the consignee.

To conquer Japan on her home islands, enormous quantities of war material must still be bought and paid for.

The purpose of the Sixth War Loan is to start raising the money for the final Big Push against Japan. Every American is asked to buy at least one extra $100 bond—at the bargain price of $75.

You buy the bonds. American industry will make the war materials. We'll roll 'em to the ports of embarkation. Our fighting men in the Pacific will do the rest.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Mortals and Immortals" will be the subject of the Sunday Lesson-Sermon in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. The Golden Text is from I Corinthians: "As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy: and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly."

John's Gospel relates that a "nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum," came to Jesus, and said, "Sir, come down ere my child die. Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth. And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way." Later when the father enquired of his servants "the hour when he began to amend . . . . the father knew that it was at the same hour, in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth: and himself believed, and his whole house."

Mary Baker Eddy writes in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures:" "Jesus beheld in Science the perfect man, who appeared to him where sinning mortal man appears to mortals. In this perfect man the Saviour saw God's own likeness, and this correct view of man healed the sick."

Two green Irishmen walking down the street saw some cranberries:

Mike: "Phwat's thim?"
Pat: "Thim?"
Mike: "Yes, thim."
Pat: "Oh, thim make finer applesauce than prunes."

Our boys must keep on fighting—we must keep on buying WAR BONDS until victory is won. Keep on BACKING THE ATTACK.

GOD IS MY CO-PILOT

By COL. ROBERT L. SCOTT

WNU Features.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I: Scott's early experiences with gliders and airplanes. He goes to Ft. McPherson and enlists in the regular army as a private.

"Son, you have won in the West Point competitive examination and I want to tell you you're starting out on the same road I started out on a long time ago. It's the greatest school in the world—but learn some common sense too. I'm sending you on furlough until you report for duty at the Military Academy. Congratulations."

The world was never so sweet. I gained two inches in the chest that day.

Thus, in July of 1928, I walked through the sally port with my suitcase and began the routine that is familiar to nearly everyone. I had heard of the strict discipline of West Point and the difficulty of studies for one handicapped by a Southern accent. My year of hard work had made me hate books again, but I resolved that after the work I had gone to I most certainly would not be kicked out or "found," as we say in Kaydet slang. I remember my father's ambition for me. He was of course proud of my appointment, and used to wonder why I didn't rank about number one in my class. During my Plebe year, which was easy because I had just about learned the first year's work at the prep school, he used to write and tell me that while it wasn't too disgraceful to be number fifty in a class of over three hundred, he couldn't see why I didn't study a little more and get up into the first twenty. Well, as the first year went by and I got into the more difficult studies, I went lower and lower in a class that dwindled finally to some two hundred and sixty. During the last year, when I was very far down, Daddy would write:

"You just stay there, Son, just stay there."

I still heard the planes flying over and try as I would, I could concentrate on nothing but the Air Corps.

In 1930 I wrote an essay on flying, and it almost got me kicked out. You see, in Military History you have to write a monograph on the strategy employed in one of the major battles of the world. I had always liked military history and had been in the first section of that subject. (At the Academy each student is in a section commensurate with his scholastic standing.) My presence in that group permitted me to choose my battle. I had had a grandfather killed at Bull Run, and I therefore selected the first Battle of Manassas.

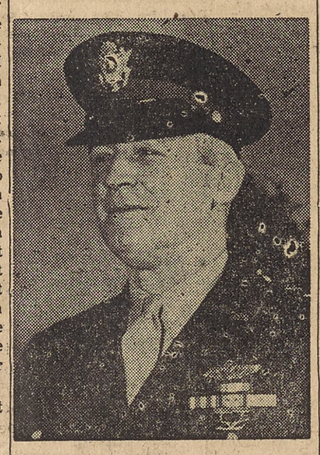

There was, as usual, many a slip. Before I was able to write the story we were permitted to travel to the West Coast to play Stanford in football. Coming back under the chagrin of defeat, I did not bother to open my books, believing that even West Point would not expect a student to recite within one hour of his return from California. But I reckoned without the rigidity of the Academy. Our train arrived across the Hudson at Garrison at 6:55, and we marched into History at 7:55. I was immediately assigned to recite on the battle of Valmy. I did not know what war it was in, and therefore knew nothing concerning it. To say that and get a zero, however, would be fatal and in fact could mean disciplinary action. I therefore resorted to the time-worn West Point tactics of evasion—known as "bugling."

Going to the blackboard with an air of confidence, I stood at attention with pointer in hand and began, "Sir, my duty for today is to explain the battle of Valmy. Napoleon declared after this engagement that the forces of an army must be concentrated for battle . . ." At that instant the professor stood up and said he would wait five seconds for me to begin the recitation correctly. I tried again and was ordered to sit down.

The zero I received dropped me from the first section to the last. Furthermore, I found immediately that in this last section the subjects for monographs were not selected by the cadet, but were assigned. The new instructor gave me the battle of Sandepu—some insignificant engagement in an insignificant war. I looked for days in the library for data on the battle, and finally found about one paragraph devoted to it in the Encyclopaedia Britannica. It was Sandepu, Haikoutai, or Yen Kai-Wan, fought during the Russo-Japanese War of 1904-05.

A pagan with my imagination and initiative, I reasoned, would simply waste his talents on such a small battle. I therefore decided to create a fictitious battle. This extra work mattered not, for I had nothing but time, having been placed in confinement for getting the zero in history. I worked out an elaborate plan for the battle and introduced the subject in a manner that I knew would attract attention to even a last-section monograph. I dedicated the work of art to the officer in charge of Field Artillery, Lieut. Pete Nuby—a contraband nickname of a very tough officer. I illustrated the monograph with pictures of New York street cleaners and wrote under them that they were Japanese soldiers waiting to go over the top at the River Ho in 1905. Lastly I tied the book in red ribbon at least six inches wide, completed with a bow larger than the monograph. I doomed myself in the last paragraph by saying that I had dreamed I had observed the battle, but had been awakened by reveille, which, as Napoleon declared at the battle of Maloyaroslavetz, is a hideous noise in the middle of the night. All of which went to prove, I contended, that history could be made in sleep, and it therefore did not require an "engineer" to be a historian.

For the story of Sandepu, I imagined that I went down to a Southern city to inspect the Army's first aircraft. This was a free balloon—the latest invention of 1905. Becoming weary, I went to sleep in the basket of the balloon. But a storm must have torn the craft from its moorings, for when I looked down I was being blown to the East across the Atlantic. For days we drifted over ocean and continents, until, coming close to the hilly ground, I used the first air-brakes ever known. They were composed of one mile of government red-tape and the anchor worn by the captain of the "goat" team of 1904. (This was readily interpreted by the professors, for the traditional football game of the year is one played between the first thirty men in the Second Class, called the "engineers," and the last thirty men, known as the "goats." I was of course in the last thirty; I had been Goat Captain, and had worn the anchor sewn on my football jersey.) These improvised airbrakes worked, and the anchor caught on a hill which I identified from maps as the hill of Chan-tan Honan—the theater of the Russo-Japanese War. From this vantage point, swinging in the balloon, I watched the two armies in battle. Merely rank facetiousness, I admit, but even then I was completely air-minded.

I was reported for submitting a facetious monograph in military art and for casting reflections on the Engineering Department. For this offense, I was brought before a board of four officers, known as the Battalion Board—or, as we called it, the "Batt Board." My explanation was that I knew, after being dropped from the first section to the last in one recitation, that I must have inferior intelligence. I therefore had no chance of writing an interesting and worthy monograph on the material of the actual battle, and accordingly I had decided to make my battle fiction, and so interesting that it would be read completely instead of merely being graded according to the tradition of the last section—that is, either barely passing or below. I argued that I had evidently accomplished that purpose, for my grade was perfect.

This explanation had just about won the Batt Board around to my side when one of the Board members—a stumpy little officer noted for his preciseness, called behind his back "Fanny" Macon—asked me: "Mr. Scott, I see your point about making the monograph interesting. But what is the red ribbon for, what does it represent?" I looked at him almost with pity. "Sir, how long have you been in the Army?" "For seventeen years," he said, intimating that it was none of my business. Even then I think I could have saved the battle, but the opportunity was too imposing. "Well, Sir," I said, "in that time you certainly should know about military red tape."

The Batt Board agreed unanimously that I should walk the Area one year. For all that, I finally graduated—even if it was just about as the anchor man.

In the summer of 1932, after being graduated and commissioned a second Lieutenant of Infantry, I went to Europe. In Cherbourg, France, I bought a motorcycle and set out to ride to Constantinople. The one-cylinder Royer took me down through Paris, then Southeast into Switzerland, and over the Simplon Pass to Italy. I spent some time in Venice, then I went up through the dust into Jugoslavia.

One day I had ridden some four hundred miles into the town of Novo Mesto. Tired and dirty from the heavy dust of the roads, I went to the best-looking of the hotels, and after some delay in making myself understood among Serbians and Croatians, I ordered beefsteak. During the explanation I gathered that someone who lived there in the town spoke English. This of course was pleasant news, for I was, after all, a lonely tourist in a very foreign land. They now sent a small boy to bring back this connecting link between us. I waited and waited, while they all pointed and jabbered about me. Finally the steak came, and got cold while my mouth watered, but I felt I had to wait and ask the American if he would eat with me. At last there was a commotion at the entrance, and I turned anxiously to see my American friend.

Through the door waddled a dark, dirty little man—evidently a former fruit-vendor in New York. He saw me, stopped his Croatian talk, threw out his arms, and cried, "Son of a beetch! Son of a beetch!" To my discomfiture, that was the only English he seemed to know. But I halved my steak with him and patted him on the back as he tried to talk, and in the end I guess his compatriots really thought their friend spoke American anyway. I could hear them calling me Americanski.

I continued on, keeping clear of the tourist routes, and finally, after a forty-five-day trip from Cherbourg, I rode into Constantinople. Here I came close to getting in a real jam. Back through my life I had concentrated on scouting, archery, and flying—anything but girls. I could remember crossing the street to keep from having to talk to them. But that real bashfulness was far behind me. Now I had about gone to the other extreme; I had found dates in Paris, Venice, and other cities, and had had a fine time.

Before reaching Turkey, I had been warned by the head of the American Express in Sofia that I should be very careful in Istanbul and should confine myself to the Americanized Turks in and around the Pera part of the city. They told me above all to stay clear of Galata—the old Greek and Turkish section. As luck ruled, however, my first acquaintance was from Galata, and that night I headed for the city of the veiled women.

Well, even with right ideas the men in that quarter had the wrong idea. I saw the danger just in time, and even then I had to jump through a window—glass and all—into an alley. I can hear the yells even these years afterwards as I ran through Galata back to Pera for my motorcycle. Stopping at the hotel just long enough to check out, I was off in more dust for Scutari and East in Asia to Ankara.

So raising the veil of a Moslem female shortened my stay in Constantinople. Even in my return to the West from Ankara, I found a way to dodge the city on the Hellespont by getting a Black Sea steamer and crossing North of Istanbul to land at Varna in Bulgaria. From here I crossed the Danube at Rustchuk and went to Bucharest.

My spirits had risen a little after missing the Turkish knives in Galata, but here I found a cablegram awaiting me. The Comptroller General had ruled that the Economy Act of June, 1932, affected all officers on leave. He had decided that I, like many others, was on leave without pay. My orders were to report to the nearest American Embassy for duty; I remember that they were signed by McColl. I sent my champagne back and ordered beer, for the money for this trip had been borrowed against my three months' leave pay. Here I was, thousands of miles from home and Randolph Field, where my flying training would start. If I reported to some ground officer in Europe, I would probably never get to fly.

Anyway, just to make sure, I hopped on my motorcycle that night and headed for Texas by way of Budapest — Linz — Bingen-on-the-Rhine—and Paris. I sold the motorcycle in Cherbourg and boarded the Bremen for a quick trip home. I had used pay that I was expecting to get during leave, and I'd be paying the bank for a long time. But I resolved right then and there that I would pay that money back from the Air Corps at Randolph Field and not from some desk in an Embassy.

And so I came at last to the Air Corps Training Center at Randolph Field, Texas.

It's hard to describe my feelings as I walked into the North gate of that field and down the nearly mile-long road to the Bachelor Officers Building, where I was to report. It seemed that all my life I had waited for this moment. Now at last the great day was at hand when I would begin my government flying training. There above me against the blue Texas sky I could see the roaring airplanes in their Army colors. As my feet carried me into the field I could hear the rhythm of the steps seeming to say in cadence, "This is it! This is what I've waited for all the days of my life!"

In October, 1932, I was assigned to Lieut. Ted Landon for primary flying training. I imagine this assignment was about as momentous for him as it was for me—for after all I must have been quite a problem, with all I thought I knew about flying and the eagerness with which I [illegible]

CHAPTER III

Though I had flown before in the prehistoric crates of the past, this fact had nothing to do with whether or not I would get through the course. On the side against me was the fact that during my unsupervised flying I had doubtless developed many faults that were not for the Army pilot to be proud of. In a case like mine, some pilots think they know it all; therefore there is nothing to learn. Others make such an effort to please their instructors that this very eagerness works against them as their own worst enemy—the result of tenseness.

My case was more of this last order. I knew I could fly the ship but I tried to carry out my instructor's orders even before he gave them. I listened almost spellbound through our oral communications system in that primary trainer—that speaking-tube which we called a "gosport" and which at best was hard to understand over the rattle of that Wright Whirlwind engine. I used to try to read his mind, execute his every little whim. I even tried to outguess Lieutenant Landon and have the stick and rudder moving in the right direction before he could get the orders out of his mouth.

Now thereby hangs a tale. I was not only trying to look in his rear-view mirror and actually read his lips when I couldn't hear through the gosport, but was diligently looking about the sky for other hare-brained student pilots. He must have realized my eagerness, for he gave me every break—and for the many boners I pulled I needed lots of breaks.

One day, at a bare four-hundred feet altitude, I thought I heard the instructor say, "Okay, Scott, put it in a dive." I peered around first and then at the nearby ground, for it looked very low to be going into a dive. Then like a flash I thought I understood: Why, he's trying to see if I'm ground-shy—I'll show him I'm not.

In a city hit by the housing shortage, a man implored a landlord for a room. "Have you any children?" the landlord asked.

"No," answered the would-be tenant.

"Any dogs?"

"No."

"Any other pets—a canary or parrot perhaps?"

"No," said the man, "but I've got a fountain pen that scratches a little.

EXTENDED MESSAGES CAN BE SENT TO LIBERATED YANK PRISONERS OF WAR

Maj. Gen. C. H. Lyman, U. S. M. C., ret., chairman of the San Diego Red Cross chapter, announced yesterday that extended messages for delivery to liberated United States prisoners of war and civilian internees in the Philippines now may be sent through the American Red Cross.

The message, which will go through the Home Service department of the local chapter to the National Home Service Department of Red Cross for forwarding to the Philippines, will be subject only to censorship regulations of ordinary army overseas mail.

Although the Red Cross cannot guarantee delivery, every effort will be made to reach addresses so they may establish contact with their families as soon as possible after the Philippines are liberated, Lyman said. Meanwhile, Lyman encouraged families to continue writing by regular prisoner-of-war mail.

The Home Service department of the San Diego chapter is located at 533 Union building, and will be open daily from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. to assist in sending the newly arranged Red Cross messages. An estimated 300 words can be written in the messages, which will be typed by Red Cross on the required special form.

IF there burns within you a sincere desire to do something active and important to help win the war, here is your opportnity. Join the WAC—serve in the Army Medical Department, where women are vitally needed now. You can help bring the war to a quick, successful end. You can help bring our loved ones—your loved ones, perhaps—home sooner. And you can learn a valuable technical skill that may be the foundation of a career after the war.

With the biggest battles of the Pacific still ahead, the West must take a still more active part in the war. You are needed here, in Australia perhaps, or elsewhere behind battlefronts, to give our men the needed attention.

The care and rehabilitation of the sick and wounded is a woman's noblest work. Get into it if you can. If you are between the ages of 20 and 50 and have no children under 14, or other dependents, call the nearest U. S. Army recruiting station, 509 Commonwealth Bldg., San Diego, Calif.

GREYHOUND SERVES TOO

Greyhound is happy to publish this message throughout the West for the WAC. We are in war work, too—providing transportation for them and other branches of the Armed Forces . . . aiding in troop movements . . . transporting wounded . . . at the same time carrying on an essential service for the traveling public. And Greyhound is looking ahead, planning for a finer, larger, better highway travel service when the war is won.

JUST JESTING

As It Is

Two workmen sat down to eat their lunch. One produced a long package. "What's that?" asked the other.

"Oh, my wife baked me a pie."

"A pie? What kind?"

"Rhubarb."

No Barrier

Joan—I hear your neighbor was accidentally shot in the head while hunting. Is his condition serious?

Jasper—No, I guess not. The bullet just went in one ear and out the other.

That's Luck

Spoofy—I fell over 40 feet today without getting hurt.

Goofy—Did you land on a feather bed?

Spoofy—No, I just stumbled through a crowded street car.

A girl's idea of a stepping stone to success is generally a diamond.

All Aboard!

Jasper—That train I came in on is called the "radio train."

Joan—Why do they call it that?

Jasper—It stops every five minutes for station identification.

But Few Autos in Japan; Bicycles Popular There

Because roads are too poor, streets too narrow, and fuel too costly, automobiles have not been used extensively in Japan. Before the war, however, Japan led the world in the production of bicycles—1,000,000 complete units a year.

The average prewar wholesale price was approximately $4 American money or about one fourth the price of a comparable American product. But Jap bikes are poorly constructed. Dealers do a tremendous parts business.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Ball Bearings

It was in 1880 that the first patents for the manufacture of commercial ball bearings was taken out by William Brown of Birmingham, England. While these English companies were making ball bearings by hand methods under great secrecy and not worrying about interchangeability of parts, Americans were busy designing and building machinery for production operations on balls.

Source of Thiamin

Pork is the richest known natural food source of thiamin, one of the B-complex vitamins so essential to health and well-being.

Labor Saver

Good tools kept knife-edge sharp are the greatest labor saver any gardener can produce. Five minutes spent in sharpening the hoe, lawn mower, or even the shovel before work will save hours of time on the job, and the back won't be so lame the next day.

FHA Operations

Nearly 6,000,000 families have been provided with better housing through the FHA program at an outlay of more than $7,500,000,000 furnished by private lending institutions. Of the 1,055,000 small homes on which mortgages have been insured under the peacetime program only 4,087 have been turned over to the Federal Housing administration following foreclosure proceedings. All of these properties have been sold except 26.

Pest Purge

Frequent dustings of sodium fluoride into cracks behind window and door facings and baseboards will get rid of silverfish, and if sprinkled freely where cockroaches are prevalent, will destroy them too. Guard against moths and carpet beetles by sealing clothes in airtight bags, putting mothballs or naphthalene flakes in winter clothes, sunning clothes, and vacuum-cleaning furniture and both sides of the carpets frequently.

Good Breakfast

Shirred (baked) eggs with bacon strips will be appetizing for breakfast, lunch or supper. Grease individual baking dishes with butter or bacon fat. Sprinkle soft breadcrumbs generously over bottom or cut one-half inch bread slices to fit bottom. Circle one or two bacon strips around the edge of dish. Slip an egg into each. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 to 375 degrees Fahrenheit, 12 to 20 minutes, depending upon firmness desired. Top each with butter.

Unit Shelves Easy For You to Build

WHETHER you have a house of your own or whether you move often, unit book shelves are the answer to many a problem. They may be scaled to fit almost any space; you may add to them as needed and they may be shifted from one place to another according to your mood. They may start in the living room and end in the children's room or in the kitchen. The units may be divided, multiplied or used in various combinations.

You need no special skill to make the three units shown. These well proportioned shelves were designed especially for amateur homecrafters to make with the simplest tools. A compass saw from the five-and-dime will cut the curved shelves of the end units. Because the shelves were designed by a homemaker, a simple method of constructing them with no open dust space at the bottom was worked out and special thought was given to the width and depth of shelves so that they would have the maximum usefulness and still be made of stock sizes of lumber.

* * *

NOTE: Pattern 270 gives a full size pattern for the curved shelves of these book cases and large diagrams with dimensions of all the straight pieces. Also a complete list of materials required and illustrated directions for each step in the construction of the units. To get this pattern enclose 15 cents with name and address and send direct to:

Lady Found Squaw Was But Humoring the Oldster

A lady tourist, walking about an Indian reservation in the West, came upon a husky squaw carrying an aged man on her back. Gazing pityingly at the overgrown papoose, she said to the young squaw:

"It is too bad that your father is crippled and cannot walk."

"Ugh!" grunted the squaw. "Him no crippled!"

"Then is he sick?"

"Ugh! Him no sick!"

"Then, why do you carry him on your back, as you would a small child?"

"Ugh!" grunted the squaw. "Him in second childhood!"

Gems of Thought

NO man or woman can really be strong, gentle, pure and good without the world being better for it, without somebody being helped and comforted by the very existence of that goodness.—Phillips Brooks.

Rich from the very want of wealth,
In heaven's best treasures, peace and health. —GRAY.

A little explained, a little endured, and a little passed over in silence, and lo! the rugged atoms fit like smooth mosaic.

Small souls try to help the world by what they noisily do, great souls by what they quietly are.

Faithful Tibetans Carry Prayer Wheels to Spin

Every faithful Tibetan Buddhist carries a prayer wheel, which he constantly spins round. The Tibetans believe in constant prayer, saying that the more often you pray the more likely are your prayers to be heard.

So inside every prayer wheel are hundreds of tiny pieces of paper, each one bearing the prayer "Om Mani Padme Hum," which, being interpreted, means "O, the Jewel in the Lotus." Every time the wheel is spun round, all the pieces of paper rotate, so that each turn means that hundreds of fluttering pieces of paper have sent their prayer to Heaven.

All over the country there are wayside shrines, built on a pedestal. Hanging from the under side of the platform are scores of large prayer wheels, and pilgrims praying at these shrines just walk round spinning each wheel, and releasing thousands of prayers.

Engineers' Preferences

American engineers prefer "tuhr-bain" for the word "turbine," and it is wise to follow their example. The word "helicopter" is given two accepted pronunciations, but "hee-li-kop-tuhr," with the third syllable stressed, is favored by aeronautical engineers.

Canned Needs

When the entire winter supply is dependent on home processed foods —canned, dried, brined, stored or frozen—the approximate necessary amounts and varieties to serve one person 30 weeks are: 20 to 35 quarts of tomatoes; 25 to 35 quarts greens and other vegetables, including 6 or more kinds; 25 to 35 quarts fruits, varied; and 5 to 10 quarts of fruit juices.

Malarial Sites

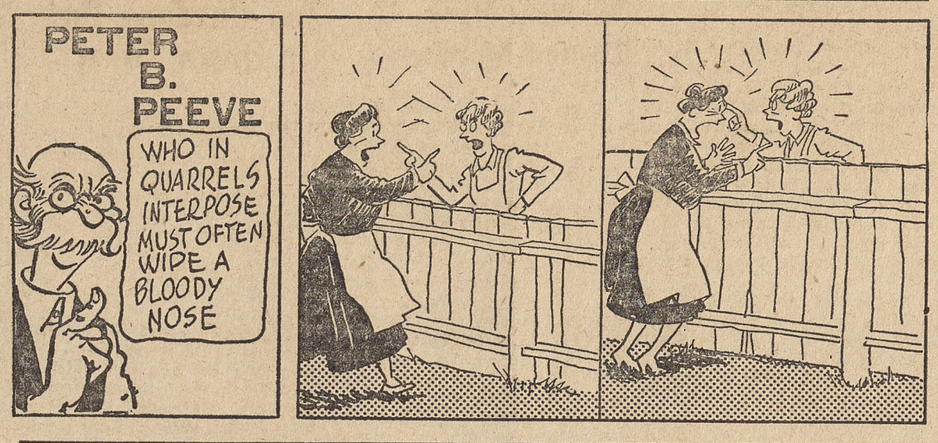

Malaria occurs where the warmth and the dampness permit the right kind of mosquitoes to develop and where there are human beings with malaria from whom the mosquitoes may carry the infection to other people. In some counties in the United States the rates have been reported as up to 100 for each 100,000 people.

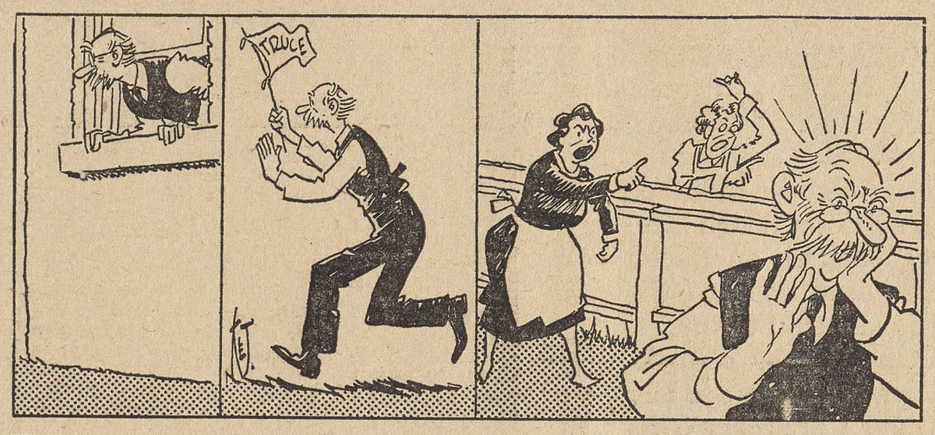

New Rope

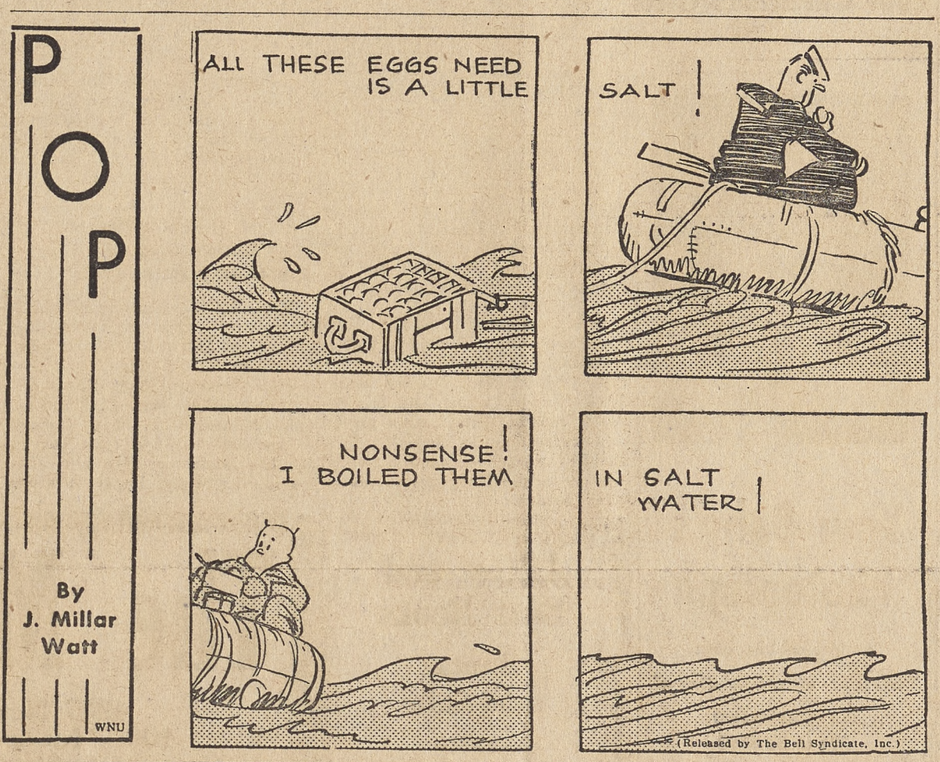

A patent recently recorded in the United Kingdom and reported in a textile periodical describes methods of treating flexible rope so that it will float on fresh salt water from 1 to 10 days. Many types of fibers may be used, including cotton, flax, manila, hemp, sisal or viscose. Rope so treated would be applicable for use as lifelines in rescue work, or as landing ropes. Luminescent materials could also be applied.

SOUND REASONABLE?

Harry—What keeps bricks together?

Jerry—Mortar.

Harry—Can't be. That's what keeps them apart!

Money Wise

Mrs. Brown—I always keep my money in an old stocking at home.

Mrs. Blue—But you lose the interest that way.

Mrs. Brown—Oh, no. I put in a bit extra once a month for that.

Servant Problem

Housewife—Are you sure you watered the plants, Matilda?

New Maid—Yes, ma'am. If you listen, you can hear the water dripping on the carpet.

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE

Poetess Ella Wheeler Wilcox was discussing woman's suffrage with a group of friends. After some conversation one of the gentlemen asked:

"What do you think is the principal difference in society's attitude toward the sexes?"

"Just this," replied the poetess. "When a man is talked about it is an eulogy, but when a woman is talked about it is an elegy."

Like a Bank

Nit—I think I know what's wrong with this country.

Wit—What do you think is the trouble?

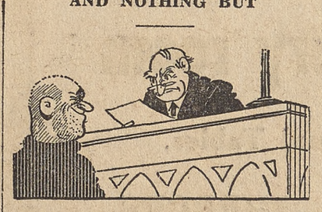

Nit—We're trying to run it with only one vice-president!

Unconscious

Doctor—Has your husband had any lucid moments since I was here last?

Wifey—He hasn't had anything but what you ordered, Doctor!

AND NOTHING BUT

Judge—Have you got a lawyer?

Defendant—No, judge, I decided to tell the truth!

Wrong Approach

Preacher—Now, Sam, why don't you try to resist your longing for drink? When you're tempted, think of your wife at home.

Sam—When I'm really thirsty, I'm absolutely devoid of fear!

Maid to Order

Housewife—Now, are there any other questions you'd like to ask?

New Maid—Yassum. Where all do Ah put yo' car aftah Ah gets mine in de garage?

Household Hints

To pick up broken glass from the floor, wet a newspaper and gently wipe up the glass with it.

A small bowl of vinegar placed in a room will absorb tobacco smoke.

Line the container in which you remove ashes from the furnace with wet paper to keep down the dust.

Keep your windows bright and clear on the inside during the winter by merely wiping them off with a soft paper napkin each week. This will remove the moist dirt and polish them at the same time.

Plant lemon seeds in flowerpots for house plants. The shiny leaves flavor cakes when one or two are placed in the bottom of the cake pan. Tie a few leaves into a cloth and drop into apple-sauce a few minutes to give it flavor.

If your lamp shades are dingy and yellow on the inside, they probably are absorbing quite a large percentage of the light you need to see by. To restore their reflecting abilities, paint the inside with two coats of white shoe polish. Pat the second coat on carefully after the first is completely dry.

After baking always leave the oven door open to permit the moisture to escape and thus prevent the oven from rusting.

Some of the new play clothes, ski suits and other outer garments are not waterproof, and they should be for small children. If you have a garment you would like waterproofed, place it in soapsuds from warm soft water and a good laundry soap. Squeeze out the excess soapsuds and dip the garment in a solution of two ounces of alum to a gallon of water. Stir the garment, squeeze out the excess water, and hang up to dry, without rinsing. It will be waterproof.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Progress of our Pacific war program and the growing possibilities of reasonably quick recapture of some rubber areas in the Far East have made men who know the rubber industry best emphasize the need for sound policies to deal with the economic and political problems which the gradual return of natural rubber will raise.

Mexico has its own way of conserving tires. Mexican motorists are required, by government regulation, to keep their cars idle one day a week. Car owners select their "motorless day" and then must display on their windshields a sticker of a color designated for that day of the week.

Huge Map of Zoo Gardens Put Up Down Town

To acquaint newly-arrived service-men with the varied attractions at the zoo, a huge illuminated pictorial map of the Balboa park zoological gardens has been erected in the downtown plaza.

Located in the center of the plaza, near the Third st. side, the map is the joint project of the USO and the San Diego Zoological society.

"This map was made available to acquaint the thousands of service-men about our zoo, which we consider one of the leading attractions of the city," said an USO official. "Many of our service men do not realize just how much enjoyment and recreation can be had at the zoological gardens. After the first visit to the zoo, the service-man goes again and again, according to our surveys."

The map, which shows the various main roads and the different major birds and animals at the zoo, was the original idea of Fay Fuller, of the Naval Training Station Hoist staff.

Following several conferences between USO and zoological society officials, Robert Patterson, Hoist artist, undertook to design and paint the map during his off-hours. He worked at night in a local department store art department for several weeks before the map was ready for erection. Permission to place it in the plaza was obtained through W. Allan Perry, park superintendent.

Already the map has caused favorable comment, particularly from service men and women. Groups can be seen studying the "cleverly-drawn sketches day and night," it was reported.

OCEAN BEACH WOMAN SEES LAUNCHING OF SUBMARINE IN EAST

Mrs. J. W. Snelson of 4419 Montalvo st. gives an interesting account of her visit with her son, Elmer, in New London, Conn., in a letter received here this week by her mother, Mrs. A. Hinrichs, 4480 Montalvo st. Mrs. Snelson writes that her son took her to see the launching of a new submarine on which he is to serve as soon as it is ready, and "it was an interesting experience to go over the submarine and see where my son will spend a good deal of the near future, only, of course, while I was aboard the sub did not submerge." Mrs. Snelson expects to be home for Thanksgiving, and reports that Elmer's wife will not return to Ocean Beach but instead plans to spend the winter in Pennsylvania with her mother, Mrs. Wildman.
